

Press Release

Women's Forum, Bank of America and HEC Paris launch the 3rd edition of the WomenEntrepreneurs4Good program, April 5th 2023.

The Women's Forum, in partnership with HEC Paris and Bank of America, launches the 3rd edition of WomenEntrepreneurs4Good, a unique accelerator program that aims to bring concrete solutions to the challenges women are facing around the world, including access to capital, resources and network. We are happy to be celebrating the 5th year of the Women's Forum, HEC Paris and HEC Alumni partnership.

Through a 7-month online program, WomenEntrepreneurs4Good supports women at the early stages of their entrepreneurship journey and equips them with resources and capabilities to innovate and grow their businesses.

Wenru (Wendy) Shi, Founder of Fingreen AI and laureate of the Prix du Jury in 2022 said: "I highly recommend women entrepreneurs who are looking for an international community and structured support to join WomenEntrepreneurs 4Good. It is a unique opportunity to access to coaching, technical support and an international network of stakeholders".

"WomenEntrepreneurs4Good supports innovative, female-led entrepreneurship to grow and develop. The Women's Forum is thrilled to launch the third edition of the initiative and invite applicants globally to apply and benefit from the specialist guidance and resources on offer. Thanks to our partnership with HEC Paris and Bank of America, shortlisted candidates will gain from coaching, visibility, technical support and networking opportunities in order to bring their ideas to life.", declared Anne-Gabrielle Heilbronner, President of Women's Forum.

"At Bank of America, we know that women play a vital role in driving sustainable economies. Still, they continue to face challenges in accessing capital and resources. We're proud to reinforce our partnership with HEC Paris and the Women's Forum through this innovative program, and to invest in women so they can better lead, create, and grow their own businesses. WomenEntrepreneurs4Good is the largest women's entrepreneurship. We are particularly excited about this new edition that is taking an international dimension, to include candidates and projects from different countries.", added Vanessa Holtz, CEO of Bank of America Securities Europe and Country Executive for Bank of America in France.

For Bank of America, this new partnership reflects its long-term commitment to its communities, focusing on enhancing economic mobility for people and supporting initiatives that promote entrepreneurship, help to create jobs, and enable the transition to sustainable employment. In Europe, the Middle East and Africa (EMEA), the firm is collaborating with more than 50 charitable organizations in 16 countries.

"HEC Paris is proud to collaborate with the Women's Forum on the third edition of the WE4G initiative, supporting exciting women-led green and social projects by putting our experts, mentors, professors, students and staff at candidates' disposal in order to accelerate their development. This year, we are pleased to add a global dimension to the program and encourage applications from wherever you are based in the world!", concludes Eloïc Peyrache, General Director of HEC Paris.

The call for applications is open to any founder or co-founder with a team of at least two people and projects of less than 20k€ in revenue that aims to address a social or environmental challenge.

After a startup sprint, 10 projects will be selected for an incubation program and will benefit from the methodology and tools of HEC Paris' startup experts. This 3-month online coaching offers visibility and access to an ecosystem of stakeholders to develop the sustainable business. Taught in English, the program is open to startups from around the world.

The winners will present their projects at the Global meeting to be held in Paris on November 28 and 29, 2023.

In addition to financial support from Bank of America, WomenEntrepreneurs4Good will benefit from the firm's expertise in the form of mentoring for the program's participants and hosting masterclasses. Vanessa Holtz is personally playing an active role in this initiative as a member of the Grand Jury selecting the finalists for the program. She will also participate to the 2023 edition of the Women's Forum, to take place this November in Paris.
